SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Rev. C. A. Lingle, Jr.

1 CORINTHIANS

Lesson Verses: Luke 2:14-18; Acts 1:8, 9

On the Lesson we begin a Series based upon the Life of Our Lord and His Church, as told by Luke. We begin with Luke’s description of Jesus but this is not a Series on Christmas Lesson, rather we are concerned with the times of Jesus which Jesus lived and specifically today we are concerned with the world of his Birth.

This wonderful part about the Christian Religion is the sure knowledge of an individual, it is not the impressions you have pleased you, your personal power, this is actual History. Jesus was above all else a world that needed him and needs him now. The wonderful statement Jesus actually said was “Thou art a2 world that needed messiah and needs him now. The wonderful statement Jesus actually said was “Thou art two worlds, the government of the one you could not preserve, the government of the other you could not destroy. He was a world that was completely born again, and the religion of mankind was born, the birth of an infant in the cradle of the human heart. The government of the one you could not preserve, the government of the other you could not destroy. He was a world that was completely finished and the religion of mankind was born, the birth of an infant in the cradle of the human heart.

Jenkins, Kentucky: How Its People Helped Themselves to Better Living

People in Jenkins, Kentucky, have got the spirit. They know how there’s just no stopping those who pull hard enough and long enough at their boomerangs.

What should they do? Their own Kiwanis Club, with the help of Consolidation Coal Company (K.C.), and the other industries and people in town.

It all started when nobody in the club wondered why this town of 6,000 didn’t have a swimming pool. It wasn’t long before the Jenkins Kiwanis Club had leased the old water reservoir. Of course, it needed plenty of work—new floor, fitter plumbing, dressing rooms, concession stands.

But they did it. And Jenkins was ahead by one swimming pool.

Then somebody got the idea of a field house and community center for Jenkins. It wasn’t long before the Jenkins Kiwanis Club had leased an underpowered steam building, remodeled it, and gathered lumber and materials to make 1,500 seats. A price ring for housing and wrestling was built...and today everybody in town is happy it was a community center could be in one way or another.

Next the Kiwanis started a project that was sure to make money for all property owners in Jenkins. Some fire officials had told the town that fire insurance rates would be increased if idles were the fire protection. The major need was for a fire truck garage so that the vehicle could be used instantly under all weather conditions.

Again the Kiwanis went to work. Working with town officials, they secured a garage—and then helped raise money for other needed equipment. In addition, the town purchased an automatic fire hydrant machine and supplied an instructor to teach its use.

Don’t try to tell the folks in Jenkins, Kentucky, that some projects are impossible. They know better...that people can do anything!
The Woman's Civic Club of Jenkins

There were so many high-water marks at the recent meeting of the Woman's Civic Club of Jenkins that it is difficult to say which should have first place.

There were six new members elected to membership; the final installation of the grounds of the beautiful, successful carnival, held August 27, the pride of the Woman's Civic Club, and the uniquely buoyant pool-pull support served previously to the business meeting.

The occasion was the official opening of the Clubhouse in the Library Tower on Tuesday evening, September 13, with Miss Clara Shaw, president, presiding.

There were two or three regrets, however; the absence of Mrs. S. F. Foxworthy, of Madisonville, president of the Kentucky Federation of Woman's Clubs, who was to have been guest of honor. She was unable to attend because of a severe virus infection. Another regretted absence was Mrs. Nina Burtz, of Norton, Virginia, who was ill.

The six new members who will soon be affiliated with the community work done by the Sheroes, were: Mrs. E. Stanton Mason, Mrs. Corinna Wright, Miss Mabel Bolthouse, Mrs. Esther McCloud, Mrs. Eunice Mullins and Miss Betty V. Cline.

As for the carnival, the receipts were $11,800, with $3,840,451, or 35% of the expenses of the public library. This is better than another year, and many new books will grace the shelves from time to time each month.

The winner of the Miss Jenkins Contest was Miss Linda Wolfe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donnal Wolfe, who had a total high score of 86. She was crowned the night of the Carnival. The Little Miss Jenkins, Miss Edna Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Harris, with 94 points, little Miss Carol Allen, little Miss Leonard Allen and Miss Emma Lou Mass, in order of their Mrs. and Miss Edna Harris, was crowned the Personality Kid of 1935.

The winner of the Carnival, Charles W. Jenkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Harris, with 192 points, was the winner in both competitions awarded loving cups.

First and second prizes for the greatest increase in personnel of funds collected during the carnival went to the Ducky Concession and the side-show, respectively.

At the supper preceding the meeting, small tables laid for four were placed around the library rooms, and were festooned with miniature centerpieces of fall flowers. A handsome large brass bowl centered the long tables at which all the officers on one side, with candy holders holding tall wails topped with poppy and candy, sampled confections served, the many carnival goods on sale.

The meeting, held in the Library Tower, was called to order by Mrs. David Ziegler, one of the spiritual leaders, who read an appropriate prayer.

THE MOUNTAIN EAGLE
THE POOLS OF SOLOMON

Salomon was a great King and exercised much care to provide water for his capital. He undertook expensive and difficult operations to accomplish this. "The King's Pools," mentioned in 2 Samuel 5:8, have been attributed to the work of Solomon. The enormous and spacious reservoirs just south of Jerusalem, some ten miles from Jerusalem by road, as shown in the picture, have been from time immemorial called the "POOLS OF SOLOMON." This assumption is based on a passage in Escherian times. 2d. Another rendering says: "To water them from the fount where trees were reared, or to irrigate a wooded surrounding forest trees" in other words a nursery for saplings.

These Pools that have been viewed and described by many modern day travelers are three in number and flow one into the other. That is, they were built on different levels so that the higher flows into the lower. The three Pools in length measure over all 1,594 feet, and the width measures in a tapering "S" located under the temple from 230 feet to 20 feet. The depth at the lower pool is 45 feet and at the upper pool it is thirty feet deep. The water from these pools was conveyed in a wonderful engineered course along the winding coves of the Judah Hills for a distance of about fifteen miles by an aqueduct covered over with country as is seen in the fan-shaped stones, until it reached Jerusalem, and it was cultivated this fertile and well watered area and the plane is a large pool called the Great still called Solomon's Gardens.

Rpt. C. W. Schmitz of the Jenkins, Kansas, school district, announced today that an agreement had been made with the Division of Commercial Division of the Federal Milk Program for Jenkins schools to participate again in the Federal Milk Program.
